THE CORWIN ARRIVES

Bringing Secret Advices to the Department.

SOME VERY UGLY RUMORS AFLOAT

The Closest Secrecy Maintained as to the Status of Hawaiian Affairs.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 5.—The United States revenue cutter Corwin arrived from Honolulu at 1 o'clock today, presumably bringing news several days later than the telegram received via Auckland this morning. She came to a stop off the Presidio military reservation, and an officer, presumably bearing official dispatches for Washington, was hurriedly landed. The Corwin then steamed up the bay toward Mare Island.

The officers of the Corwin refused absolutely to give a word of information to a Merchants' Exchange reporter or to the newspaper men.

No one was allowed to board her, and the Exchange boat was thrown off. The officer of the deck stated that he did not propose to give any news to the Associated Press, the newspapers or any one else.

The last seen of the Corwin she was steaming up Raccoon straits, but at 6 p.m. had not arrived at the navy yard. It is thought she came to anchor off Quarantine station or Angel island, where there is little possibility of whatever news the officers and men may have getting to the outside world.

MYSTERIOUS MOVEMENTS AT VALLEJO.

VALLEJO, Cal., January 5.—A vessel, supposed to be the United States revenue cutter Corwin, from Honolulu, was sighted at dusk, headed for Mare Island navy yard, but it was learned later that the vessel was not the Corwin, but a steam schooner bound for Port Costa. It is now thought that the Corwin has steamed up Oakland creek.

Several messages were received here from Washington tonight, each addressed to Commander C. E. Clark and bore the prefixed admonition of "rush." These dispatches were immediately sent over to the navy yard and delivered. Half an hour later Commander Clark's cutter was called away and Lieutenant Waden, executive of the Mohican, was hurried ashore and proceeded direct to the telegraph office, where he deposited several dispatches which were immediately rushed to their destination.

Word has just been received here that preparations are being made to load 100 tons of coal on the Mohican's deck. This information is reliable, and it is thought that the dispatches are in response to those brought by the Corwin.

THE CORWIN LOCATED.

1 a.m.—The captain of the steamer Sunol which arrived here late tonight from San Francisco reports that the revenue cutter Corwin is anchored off Red Rock, opposite San Quentin. The officers at Mare Island are in a great state of excitement tonight. They firmly believe there has been trouble at Honolulu, and look for interesting developments.

GRESHAM SILENT.

WASHINGTON, January 6.—Same cipher dispatches have been received by Gresham from the Corwin, but they will not be given out tonight.

The state department are inclined to discredit the Auckland dispatch to the Associated Press last night saying that Minister Willis had made a demand on the provisional government of Hawaii to abdicate in favor of the Queen, on the ground that such motion is directly contrary to the instructions sent by the Corwin and received by Willis December 11th, nearly two weeks before the date of the Auckland advices. There is intense anxiety, however, in congressional circles and all sorts of rumors are afloat that blood has already been spilled at Honolulu.

The government printing office today issued a volume containing the President's special message on Hawaii, with the accompanying correspondence by the senate resolution. It contains reports from Minister Willis not yet published. Among them is one dated Honolulu, November 11th, in which Willis expresses intention of affording protection to the Queen. "Neither side," says Willis, "has the vaguest idea of the attitude of our government, and consequently no outbreak has yet occurred, though every night is filled with rumors."

The last message from Willis was dated December 4th, after having received Gresham's second set of instructions, based upon the defiant attitude of the provisional government. Willis says: "There have been active defense precautions for several days, otherwise the situation is about the same; the feeling is intense, but I hope to preserve the status until further instructions; the government last Wednesday inquired as to the authenticity of your published letter and the intentions of the President; I have declined to answer; prompt action is desirable."

THE LATEST STORY

Says Liliuokalani Is on Board the Corwin.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 6.—2 a.m.—Up to this hour no news of any character has been secured from the Corwin. There was a rumor afloat that the reason of Captain Munger's queer action in refusing to give out news or allow any one else to do so was because he has ex-Queen Liliuokalani on board. It was said that the Queen finding that affairs were critical in Honolulu and fearing for her safety applied to Minister Willis for protection and was sent to San Francisco on the Corwin.

This story, however, is so highly improbable that it obtains little credence. Another explanation of Munger's churlishness is that he was so chargrined because the news of the department of the Corwin for Honolulu was printed in spite of his strenuous efforts to keep her destination a secret that he is taking this method to get even with the newspapers. Why any public servant should take upon himself the task of withholding news from them when the imparting of such information would in no wise conflict with his official duties or naval etiquette is more than the people here can understand.

A Bread and Water Diet.

RIVERSIDE, January 5.—At the present time this county is overrun with tramps and as a consequence the county jail is well filled with this undesirable element. For some time past tramps have been kept at work on the roads, but today they refused to work, and were locked in close confinement, where they will be kept on bread and water until willing to go to work. The men are defiant, and the outcome of the difficulty is a matter of conjecture.

THE FAIR.

An Important Notice Delivered to Exhibitors.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 5.—The regular meeting of the managing board of the Woman's Congress auxiliary to the Midwinter Fair was held Thursday. Plans for promoting general interest among women in the work of the congress were discussed at length, and a special committee appointed to make arrangements for auditorium accommodations for the congress.

The State Viticultural Commission has made an appropriation to be used in the construction of a viticultural annex to the horticultural and agricultural building at the exposition.

Idaho will make a mining exhibit and an exhibit of horticulture and agriculture as well.

The following notice was issued today by the executive committee: "All exhibitors must take possession of the space allotted them and install their exhibits immediately. Those who have not made a showing by the 8th instant will forfeit the space allotted. All exhibits must be prepared for an inspection of the press on the night of January 18th."

The Iowa state band, which will be a feature of the exposition, left Chicago today for the coast.

PENNOYER EXPLAINS

The Assertions Made in His Christmas Letter.

PORTLAND, January 5.—Governor Pennoyer, replying to the criticisms on the statement made in his Christmas letter to President Cleveland that two-thirds of the people of Oregon were without employment, today said: "In one sense of the word are all employed; the tramp is employed in hunting from place to place for a job, and the mechanic out of work is employed in contemplating the sorrowful condition of his wife and children. What I meant was remunerative employment, and what I said was true. Business is paralyzed and two-thirds of our people, if not falling behind, are making no headway, nor will they until we have a sufficient full legal tender currency, of gold, silver and treasury notes, with which to effect a ready and complete interchange of commodities."

THE HOUSE

And the Small Amount of Business It Transacted Yesterday.

WASHINGTON, January 5.—The house opened in an uproar, with Catchings trying to report from the committee on rules and Boutelle demanding a vote on his question of privilege on the Hawaiian matter. The house committee on rules decided to report a rule for the final vote on the tariff bill on January 25th. On a vote to allow the committee on rules to report, the Democrats lacked eight of a quorum. At 1 p.m. the chances of securing a quorum to take up the tariff bill was so slim that the caucus committee agreed that unless a quorum developed at once adjournment be taken, and the caucus set for tonight should begin at once and continue till some plan for Democratic action was reached.

Catchings moved that the house adjourn, and the motion was agreed to amid the cheers of the Republicans.

Wholesale Slaughter.

LONDON, January 5.—A sensational report from Sierra Leon, Senegambia, says Captain Landy, inspector general of the frontier police, and twenty-six men and several officers of the west Indian regiment engaged in an expedition against the Sofas, who have been giving trouble to British traders near the French territory, have all been killed and by French troops. This is confirmed by the capture of a French officer who participated in the attack. The affair causes great excitement, but no further details have been received.

The Spreckels at Peace.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 5.—The suit which was commenced on November 1st by C. A. Spreckels, charging his father, Adolph Spreckels, and his two brothers, of attempting to defraud him out of his interests in the Hawaiian Commercial Company, was dismissed today. The dissensions in the Spreckels family have been settled and a compromise effected, whereby C. A. Spreckles retains his interests in the Hawaiian Commercial Company.

Will Pay the Penalty.

SALINAS, January 5.—W. M. Leary, who was tried and convicted of the murder of H. Bonelli in September last and whose case has been on appeal in the supreme court, was yesterday sentenced by Superior Judge Dorn to be hanged at San Quentin on March 30th next.

The Markets.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 5.—Wheat—Easy; May, $1.20⅝.
Barley—May, 82½c.
Corn—92½c.

PACIFIC COAST ITEMS.

Steps have been taken at San Jose to form a county wine exchange similar in purpose to that of the fruit exchange.

Judge Virden at Bridgeport, Mono county, has sentenced A. M. Gross to San Quentin for one year and six months for selling liquor to Indians.

Secretary of State Waite says the sensational story that fears were entertained the treasury would be robbed at Sacramento was false from beginning to end.

Many Sacramento officials propose to test the legality of the new charter, and will not surrender their offices until they are required to do so by a court decision.

Clarence M. Barton, well known to people in all parts of Washington as newspaper man, and as the author of Barton's Handibook, died at Oswego, Or., last Sunday morning.

William Morton and George Mosser, in an extended prospecting tour on the desert, about 200 miles north of San Bernardino, and about forty miles from Goler, discovered placer mines never before known, and gathered several large nuggets as the result of one day's work.

Renetta, the trapezist at Victoria, B. C., by the breaking of the trapeze bar, fell about eight feet, striking on her neck and shoulder. For two minutes she lay unconscious, then staggered to her feet and asserted she was not a bit hurt, and finished the performance amid applause.

Two large ocean steamers are now en route from the Atlantic coast for Puget Sound. They will arrive there some time next month, and will carry passengers and freight between Sound points and San Francisco during the Midwinter Fair period. The vessels are said to be the property of the Canadian Pacific Railroad company.

GROVER IS DISLIKED

Democratic Hatred of the Dictator Increasing.

A RED HOT ARRAIGNMENT

Every Action Is Characterized by Selfishness and Subservience to Monopoly.

Washington Cor. of Chicago Times (Dem.)

Wayne MacVeagh is named ambassador to Italy. MacVeagh is a Republican—always was and always will be. He was one of Garfield's cabinet. He is a lawyer. He is elegantly eastern in all of his belongings. His intelligence is afflicted with a consumptive cough, and a hectic flush glows on its delicate cheeks. His politics goes in overshoes and muffler, and never handles anything without first pulling on its kid gloves. He was never a Democrat nor in sympathy with Democrats. He never drank a cupful of water from the Democratic spring. He never labored a moment in the party vineyard. His whole life has been spent in efforts to defeat the Democracy. His whole future will be devoted to contriving its overthrow.

Why does Cleveland name him for private personal reasons of his own? Because in a spirit of narrow apostacy and personal enmity directed against that party's nominee MacVeagh turned traitor to his party standard and wrote a letter devoting his one puny vote to the cause of Cleveland. His reward for this tremendous treason and little service is the Italian mission. Democracy is robbed to pay the personal debts of its dictator. The party is outraged and insulted and the Greshams and MacVeaghs are named.

The Democracy is made to stand without its temple, while Mugwumpery is given the highest place in the synagogue. The the Greshams and the MacVeaghs, are allowed to pollute the solemn feasts of the Democracy.

Once upon a time a creature called Van Alen, whose claim to fame was that he lived in European months in twelve and was an object of distrust to husbands, brothers and fathers wherever he went, bought this Italian mission from Cleveland, Whitney & Co. for $50,000. The goods were delivered, but Van Alen at last concluded, like the man who won the dog at a raffle, that after all he didn't want it. Cleveland on the occasion of his declining, urged him to accept in a letter, the terms and phrasing of which were such a gratuitous insult to the decent voice of the Democracy that the letter deserved to have been pinned to the broad back of our dictator while, with shaven head, he was drummed out of the party. But Van Alen would not have it, and so, going by Lambert Tree and others of standing and worth, as well as of pure Democracy, Cleveland devotes this high appointment to the decoration of this Republican Prince Charles spaniel which came unexpectedly to him at the political beach show of '92.

It is hard to make the far-away intelligence comprehend the character and sort of this dictator of ours. There is a haze of distance and the halo which seems to go with the white house. Take the veriest make a President of it, and, presto, its apotheosis begins. So it is with Cleveland. Look at the Democracy of a year ago. It swept the country. It was healthy, ruddy, eupeptic, full of hope. It believed in Cleveland and elected him and he has betrayed the trust. He accepted the nomination on a silver platform, in a silver letter. He has since dishonored the platform and shown his letter to be false. He has murdered silver in the midst of its friends.

I've no personal interest in these people or these charges. Personally—praise be to some benignant spirit—my acquaintance with Cleveland goes no further than the merest introduction. I am a Democrat, too, and have a natural partisan interest in his defense. But what's the use? I know what I set forth here to be true. And the ways and means Democrats know it also. Privately they'll tell you so. Publicly they'll skulk and sprawl and hide in the grass. If it isn't so, where and how did Cleveland, a poor prey to poverty but eight short years ago, manage to become the multi-millionaire he is today? I tell you, Democrats, your White House is nothing today but an intrigue, managed by a back-stairs cabinet from New York city, and your President, who deceived you in your convention and in your campaign, and who has added outrage to insult and deception ever since you installed him; I tell you your and a political quack. He belongs to no school, and is simply the Cagliostro of American politics.

What has he done?

He took a Republican for secretary of state, as today he selected another from the same black coop ambassador to Italy after the place had been declined with thanks by a smoke-dried rake who had inherited enough money to pay $50,000 for it without feeling it.

He allowed the trusts to pick out his attorney general to the end that they might rob in peace far from the baying dogs of public prosecution.

He permitted the whisky interest to name his secretary of the treasury and the grand collector of our internal revenue.

He had Villard and Hill and the Northern Pacific select the head of the interior department whose chief customers Villard, Hill and the railroad were and are.

He had Whitney send him Lamont because the private conspirings of the Cleveland-Lamont - Whitney - Benedict combine include the executive part of this great government in its war maps.

Today you carry the city of Chicago, so says the wires, by scarce 1400 votes. You carried it for this same Cleveland by 37,000 and for Carter Harrison, with the newspaper word against him and the cold shoulder of the white house turned his way, by more than 20,000. Today all these thousands were shrunk to fewer than two.

WHO IS TO BLAME?

The executive who put a professional German Republican, whose politics and whose record looks like a Maypole into your postoffice. Who is to blame for you grazing late today—carrying your city which has been Democracy's stronghold by a majority so bare, and slight, and slim, that it promises the loss of your state? The president who insulted 68,000 of you, to say nothing of your senator and representatives, not to mention the unanimous convention of the Cook county Democracy by disregarding Lawler and placing the political mountebank referred to in your postoffice.

As late as last Saturday he promised to appoint Lawler marshal. Today is Tuesday, and no Lawler yet. He says it was because he had not time. He found an hour to select and name the blackest Republican in the blackest Republican state to be minister to Italy. What was the matter with the Chicago Democracy today? Lawler was the matter, Hesing was the matter, the promotion of a sniveling mugwumpery was the matter, the preference of Republicans over Democrats was the matter, Wall street governing the White House was the matter, the scheme to overthrow a white, civilized republic, and restore upon its ruins the black dynasty of a strumpet was the matter.

AND CLEVELAND DID IT ALL,

And he is doing more and will continue to do more until the party he has betrayed and ruined ransacks its courage and discovers the resolution to knock him on the head.

This man is either blind or criminal. And those of the west who follow him are lost, and their party is lost. This white-house quack-salver is eastern, and his nostrums and his drugs may do for a mugwump stomach as may cheer and cure a swine, but they are rank poison to the Democracy of the west and south.

Under his leadership and his policies, take a look at your party in congress. It is hiding and meandering and running away from half its number of Republicans. Today Boutelle and Reed, and the whole house camp of Republicans came down to the barriers, and challenged anyone of the Democrats, or all, to single battle or to general war, in honor and defense of this precious President of ours and his kingly podey of Queen Lil. And every Democrat of them all turned pale and shook where he sat, and never a one dared don his steel cap and draw his sword for his party or his President's sake. And when Crisp, from the invincible coign of the gavel, reserved them from Boutelle and denied him his right to fight, then the Democrats broke into cheers of delighted relief.

Why did they cheer? Because, bless their two-hundred-odd souls, Crisp had kept Boutelle from attacking them.

Oh, I was very proud of them. And so would you have been had you been here. Such a brave, doughty cheer it was, too, and all because Crisp had thrown himself and the chair between our tremblers and the single charge of one man from Maine.

And yet don't blame them. It wasn't Boutelle, nor the flashing sarcasm of Reed; it was the crushing dead weight of Cleveland's black policy of Hawaii. The house Democracy is like some horse thrown down in harness by the crimes and misdeeds of its White-House driver. It will never get up till some brave hand cuts buckle and strap. Nor will it keep its feet when up again, while dense ignorance, made worse by intrigue, drives from the White House.

I. O. O. F. INSTALLATION.

An Interesting Time Had by Fowler Lodge.

At Fowler last evening District Deputy Grand Master W. D. Crichton, installed the newly elected officers of Fowler lodge No. 303, I.O.O.F. He was assisted by the following past grands:

R. L. Peeler, G. M.; Frank Huay, G. W.; William Atkinson, G. S.; H. E. St. George, G. T.; Charles Oaks, G. G.

The officers installed are: M. S. Rose, P.G.; E. L. Pratt, N.G.; Fred Nelson, V. G.; O. N. Burton, secretary; David Cannon, treasurer; Charles Oaks, warden; A. C. Rosser, conductor; H. E. St. George, I.G.; W. F. Manley, O.G.; J. S. Manley, R.S.N.G.; Charles Nelson, L.S.N.G.; Frank Duay, L.S.V. G.; H. Dougherty, L.S.V.G. Trustees—M. S. Rose, A. R. Shumaker and D. D. Wilson.

The installation was a public one, and witnessed by many people. A banquet followed the ceremonies.

"SHAUN RHUE"

Witnessed By a Large Audience—A Fine Play.

It was expected that the well known Irish comedian, Joe Murphy, would draw a large audience, and the expectation was fulfilled. Had the weather been better there would no doubt have been a still larger attendance.

The play "Shaun Rhue" is so well known that it needs no extended notice. It is clean and interesting, abounding in humorous and pathetic situations.

Joe Murphy represented the title role with all his old time ability. He cannot be excelled as a portrayer of the rollicking Milesian and has very few equals in that line. His support, composed mostly of San Francisco players, was very satisfactory.

The audience was well pleased and was not backward in showing its appreciation. Manager Barton deserves encouragement in securing attractions of this superior class.

A Relative of Cleveland Hurt.

BEATRICE, Neb., January 5.—While crossing a street last night with his wife, who is a sister of President Cleveland, W. G. Hoyt was run into by a buggy and knocked senseless. He remains in a semi-conscious state, though his physician believes he will recover. He is seriously injured.

Judge Long Wins.

WASHINGTON, January 5.—The pension office has decided that in view of the act of congress of December 21, 1893, it no longer has the right to withhold the pension of Judge Long of Michigan and has directed that he be again placed on the pension rolls.

THE trust crusher appears to be badly out of gear.

THE indignant people of Sanger should learn as soon as they can conveniently that rotten eggs do not disprove an assertion, and that as an argument they are below par in polite society.

TULARE and Kings counties propose to enact a Sunday saloon closing ordinance similar to the law now in successful operation in this county. The value of a good example is generally underestimated.

IT is not surprising that Democratic journals are not pleased with the character of the news sent out by the news-gathering associations. It is not, generally speaking, very pleasant news for anybody who does not find pleasure in reading of destitution and suffering.

VISALIA has some thieves mean enough to steal a quantity of fine fruit donated for exhibition at the Midwinter Fair. No punishment would be too severe for such people. If caught they ought to be compelled to listen to an expression of the esteem in which they are held by "Uncle Dan" Thomas, the "widder's friend."

AGAIN the wail is heard that the pay of our diplomatic representatives abroad is wholly inadequate, and we are informed that there is a "prevailing sentiment in favor of a large increase in their salaries." The circumstance that called forth this wail appears to be the recent promotion of some of our ministers to ambassadors and the fact that their salaries were increased by the sum of only $5000 or so. It is estimated by the few people who favor extravagance in our diplomatic system that $50,000 is little money to support the establishment of an American ambassador abroad, and that even with this amount he cannot maintain the style customary with ambassadors from other countries. It is about time that the people give some thought to this matter and ask themselves if they are willing to pay even $17,500 for maintaining a useless officer abroad in luxury and idleness. The functions of an ambassador are mostly of a social nature and the few official duties he has to perform could be equally well attended to by a consul. Our foreign relations are not of a nature to require the services of an ambassador, and the sooner this useless office is dispensed with the better it will be for our national treasury. It certainly can give no satisfaction to Americans to know they are paying thousands of dollars to fill the bellies of foreign officials with pate de foie gras and champagne. Let us send representatives to foreign countries who know how to extend our commerce and not such whose only accomplishment is the knowledge of how to give good dinners.

THE San Francisco Call says that "Mr. Cleveland is on record in several places as an advocate of the policy of restraining trusts. Mr. Cleveland's attorney general now informs Mr. Cleveland that trusts cannot be restrained. The Sherman anti-trust law is well enough until the time comes to enforce it. Then, in Attorney General Olney's opinion, it becomes impracticable. The difficulty of enforcing any law which restrains the exercise of what money considers its rights is more clearly observable as time goes on. According to the dictum of men of the Olney type the only class that can be restrained is the class that have nothing. The right of workingmen to combine to resist a reduction in wages below a fair standard of living may be denied, but no law may be enforced which restrains the right of the capitalist to make two dollars out of one. With a good deal of ostentation Mr. Cleveland mounted an anti-trust platform and immediately proceeded to fish for a corporation lawyer to serve as his legal advisor. He found Olney without much difficulty. Olney was serving as the legal adviser of two railway combinations, and still had leisure to act as attorney general of the United States. It is not known that he has given up his salary in either of his private offices, nor is it known that he has done anything to earn the salary he draws from the United States treasury. It is well that Olney should state openly the legal view he takes of trusts. There has never been an expectation that he would do anything, and it is just as well to know that in his opinion there is nothing to be done. Without doubt John W. Rockafeller will entirely agree with Attorney General Olney that trusts are unassailable in law. Society may abridge all other rights and privileges, but when it attempts to restrain the exercise of law machinery by which such schemers as Rockefeller make $100,000,000 in twenty years society itself must be restrained. Such appears to be the gospel of the Cleveland administration!"

ACCORDING to yesterday's advices from Hawaii President Cleveland is firmly resolved to carry out his policy of restoration in spite of the opposition of the people of this country and that of the decent element in the islands. If they are correct Cleveland has again shown his insolent disregard for congress, persisting in a policy while that body was in session, which be knew was regarded unfavorably by it. It appears from the advices mentioned that the orders sent to Minister Willis by the Corwin, which left San Francisco at midnight on December 5th, that the minister was to proceed at once to carry out his previous instructions with regard to the restoration of Liliuokalani. This order was sent by Cleveland in face of the report of Minister Willis, which showed that the affairs on the islands are different from what "Paramount" Blount reported them to be; in face of the fact that congress was in session, and would demand an explanation of the President of his course in the Hawaiian affair; in face of the criticism bestowed upon his policy in the senate, which, had he any sense of propriety, would have prompted him to submit the correspondence and information relative to the matter in his possession to congress, to carry out or repudiate his program, according as it seemed just or unjust to that body.

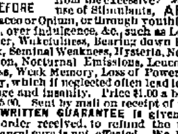

It could have been only the fear that his course would not be indorsed, and thus receive a blow to his inordinate vanity, that induced him to continue in his role of a dictator, believing that once he had definitely settled the Hawaiian question according to his and Liliuokalani's views and interests, the subservient majority in congress would not dare to discredit him. The day after the Corwin left San Francisco with Cleveland's order of restoration, Senator Hoar offered a resolution calling for the correspondence in the Hawaiian affair. The resolution was passed a few days later, but the information called for was not transmitted to congress until December 19th. It appears very much, in view of the turn affairs have taken, that the President purposely delayed acting on the request of congress in order to gain time so that any possible interference with his policy might come too late to be of any avail.

If the President meets with no effective opposition to his policy in congress it is very likely that he will in the islands. The provisional government is as determined as ever to oppose Liliuokalani's restoration, and it seems quite certain that if our forces at Honolulu attempt it bloodshed will ensue. The fact, if it is such, that the ex-Queen has at last consented to grant amnesty to all who took part in the revolution and will ratify the obligations of the provisional government and govern faithfully in accordance with the present constitution, will have no force with the provisional government, for once restored there is nothing to prevent her from breaking all these pledges and adopting a policy of revenge and oppression. Perhaps, when the blood of our sailors has been spilled in putting a black bawd on a throne, the cringing majority in congress will summon sufficient courage to gently inform the great American Czar in the White House that he has not done altogether well.

Summons.

In the Superior Court of the County of Fresno, State of California.

O. Seribner, plaintiff, vs. Alex Betheder, defendant.

Action brought in the Superior Court in and for the County of Fresno, State of California, and the complaint filed in the office of the clerk of said county.

The People of the State of California send greeting to Alex Betheder, defendant.

YOU ARE HEREBY REQUIRED TO APpear in an action brought against you by the above named plaintiff in the Superior Court, in and for the County of Fresno, State of California, and to answer the complaint filed therein, within ten days (exclusive of the day of service) after the day of service on you of this summons, if served within this county; or, if served elsewhere, within thirty days.

The said action is brought to obtain a judgment against you for the sum of five hundred and five dollars, alleged to be due, owing and unpaid from you, said defendant to said plaintiff, for goods, wares, merchandise, cigars, beer, etc., sold and delivered to you at and in the county of Fresno, state of California, at your special instance and request, alleging that said goods, wares, and merchandise, cigars, beer, etc., were sold and delivered as aforesaid by one Paul Friedman and by one Joseph Huber and assignment of their several claims therefor to this plaintiff. Plaintiff also prays for costs of suit.

And you are hereby notified that if you fail to appear and answer the said complaint, as above required, the said plaintiff will cause your default to be entered and take judgment against you for said sum of five hundred and five dollars and costs of suit, as will more fully appear by said complaint on file as aforesaid, a copy of which is herewith served and to which you are hereby specially referred for further particulars.

Given under my hand and the seal of the Superior Court, in and for the County of Fresno, State of California, this 12th day of December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

[Seal] W. A. SHEPHERD, Clerk.

EVANS' DESPERATE THREATS

Interesting Information From the Mountains and Local Rumors.

Last night Deputy Sheriffs J. F. Bedford and John F. Stevens and Deputy Constable Henry Russell returned from Pine Flat, having left Sheriff Scott and his posse at 11 o'clock yesterday morning twenty miles northeast of Trimmer's Springs.

Their appearance plainly told the story of the hardships undergone in their almost sleepless pursuit of the outlaws through mud, rain and snow, and their story will be read with interest.

When Evans and Morrell reached Pine Flat they were about tuckered out, and Morrell presented a haggard appearance from the wounds on his chin and forehead, made by the wagon wheel.

Evans boasted of his shooting City Marshal Morgan, although he did not know who it was he shot. He said "the man grabbed Morrell and he hollered. I told him to let go, and then I let go."

Morrell stated that he knew that he was going to be arrested for theft of the watches and chains which were found in the valise, so he joined fortunes with Chris to escape.

EVANS' MESSAGE TO SCOTT.

This conversation took place at Newt Demasters' the day after their escape, and when Sheriff Scott arrived and asked Demasters if he had seen Chris, he said that he had and that Evans left a note for Scott and told him to tell him that he must not follow him; that he liked Scott, but that if he followed him he would single him out and shoot him on sight.

John F. Stevens says that Sheriff Scott was thoroughly enraged by the receipt of this message, and knowing Demasters was aiding Evans in every way he could, told him that he had come to take him, and that he would capture him at the risk of his life.

Demasters told Scott that he had better go back, as they were heavily armed, and could not be taken. Scott asked him if he got any arms there, and Demasters said he did not, and that he did not see their arms, but that Evans told him and his brother Dick that they were, and that Evans would not lie to him.

Scott told him that he knew they had no arms but their pistols at the house they stopped at just before they reached Demaster's. It seems that when they got to Pine Flat Evans had Morgan's pistol with but one cartridge, and that Morrell had a 32-caliber with but two cartridges.

AN ACCOMODATING MEMORY.

The posse then went to Dick Demasters', a mile beyond, and asked his wife if she had seen Chris Evans.

"What, has Chris escaped," she asked, with well feigned astonishment. "Did he make a fight?"

Jim Meade and John F. Stevens went on to where they saw Dick plowing. Meade knew him, and asked if he had seen Chris.

"Chris who?" he asked, with even a greater show of astonishment than shown by his wife.

"Chris Evans," said Meade.

"Why, my God, no. Has he escaped?"

At this point Stevens said, "What is the matter with you? Your brother has just told us he was at his house and that you were there and talked with him."

This so nonplussed Demasters that he could only mumble his offer of the freedom of the range to hunt Evans.

Afterward they got track of them at Demasters' hog camp, where they spent two nights. At this point Morrell changed hat and coat and left his 32-caliber pistol, all of which are now in possession of the posse.

SCOTT LEADS HIS MEN.

They left them about 9 o'clock in the morning and the officers were about a half day behind them. The house was surrounded and Scott's orders were to first take Evans and Morrell if a fight occurred and attend to the dead and wounded afterwards. Scott led the advance saying "Boys, if I am shot down pay no attention to me. Keep shooting and be sure you get them. I don't want this to be a Young's cabin fight."

They found that Evans and Morrell had already left for Coop's place, about seven or eight miles distant, in a mining region between Sycamore and Dinkey creeks, and about twenty miles northeast of Trimmer Springs. The trail is very blind and the snow was deep and falling fast.

The posse headed for Coop's place, but the fugitives had not reached there—they evidently having lost the trail—and other tactics were resorted to, which the posse will not at present make public.

THE OUTLAW'S CONDITION.

The outlaws are known to have a Marlin rifle with eight or nine cartridges, a Henry rifle, with probably fifteen or twenty cartridges, and Morgan's pistol. They have no money and no provisions except what they can obtain from the residents, who, of course, dare not refuse to supply them. Morrell is said to be very nervous and badly frightened, but Evans is keeping him braced up.

THE POSSE WELL.

There are ten men in pursuit now and a wagon came down to Sanger yesterday and went back with supplies of blankets, clothing, shoes, rubber overcoats and provisions. Meade, Stevens and Will Henry wore their shoes out and Scott telephoned to Sequoia mills and had some sent down the flume.

These proved a welcome makeshift to Meade, Stevens and some others. Stevens' feet are skinned, and so are some others', but otherwise the posse is in good condition and full of determination. They have abandoned their horses as useless where they now are.

Bedford and Stevens were sent down to look after some business of the sheriff's office, and will not return unless ordered by the sheriff. They are of the opinion that the chase is near its end.

It was rumored last night that Evans and Morrell had been captured late in the afternoon and that the posse would arrive some time this morning with the captives. No particulars accompanied the rumor, and it could not be confirmed.

STEALING AMMUNITION.

E. J. Sorrell arrived from Trimmer's Springs last evening and confirms the information that the bandits are in the neighborhood of Dinkey Creek. He stated that Evans and Morrell were at the mine of a man named French Louis, on the Dinkey, last Wednesday.

There was no one at the cabin at the time and the bandits took away with them two boxes of cartridges for Winchesters. It came to have been the intention of Evans and Morrell to go to Coop's place, several miles farther up, but they did not get that far, probably on account of the snow, which, Mr. Sorrell says, is about four feet deep in that vicinity. French Louis' place is about fourteen miles beyond Ockenden's store.

James E. Deck, charged with assisting Evans to escape, was brought before Justice Austin yesterday. He was informed of his rights and his bonds were fixed at $3000. His preliminary examination was set for next Tuesday at 2 p.m. It was Deck who told the officers on the day that Evans escaped that the Porterville train would be robbed that evening and succeeded in getting the officers out of the city.

The examination of Jim Hutchinson, charged with the same offense as Deck, was to have taken place yesterday, but was continued to Monday, Assistant District Attorney Walser stating some important witnesses for the people were absent.

DR. MAUPIN'S COMPLAINT.

The Result of Advertising in The Republican.

Dr. Maupin was very much put out the other morning over his failure to secure a cook, and his face wore the expression of a man whose breakfast coffee had not tasted right.

He complained bitterly to a newspaper man that he had raced over town for a week in search of a woman to preside over his household culinary department to no purpose, and was down-right disgusted.

"Why don't you advertise for one, Doctor?" was the suggestion of a newspaper man.

"Advertise, your grandmother!" was the somewhat irrelevant reply, as no one's grandmother had strayed. "What good would that do?"

The paper man told him that he would put in an "adv." on the principle of "no cook, no pay," and the doctor agreed to the proposition.

"How many insertions, doctor?—three times?"

"Three times! Put it in a week, and if it doesn't scare up a cook by that time, run it a month! I want a cook!

The advertisement went in, and next morning an angry roar came over the telephone and the following was chronicled:

"REPUBLICAN office?"

"Yes sir."

"This is Dr. Maupin. Take that advertisement of mine out, and take it out quick!"

"Which advertisement do you refer to, Doctor?"

"Why, that one I put in last night—cook wanted—got a cook two hours ago—turned away five more—four more now prowling around the front yard—take it out!"

The advertisement came out.

LITTLE PERFORMERS

Give An Enjoyable Performance at Kutner Hall.

A very pleasant entertainment was given at Kutner hall Thursday evening by a number of young folks under the direction of Mrs. D. W. Swain. They were the same little people who took part in the recent production of "Cinderella" and "Red Riding Hood," which was so much enjoyed.

A well executed duet on the piano was played by Misses Genevieve Swain and Oleo Stevens. A dialogue, "Dotty Dick and Dicky Dot" was acceptably given by Ralph and Muriel Swain. Ethel Oppenheimer made a hit with the amusing song, "I'm the Man Who Wrote 'After the Ball,'" and was encored. Pansy McVey recited very prettily "Grandpa's Spectacles."

DeWitt Justy and Lillian Weilheimer, two of the cutest youngsters imaginable, sang "Reuben and Rachel." "The Female Missionary and the Freckle Faced Girl" was effectively rendered by Florence Sherwood and Miss Pelley. George Marmin sang "Rose Marie" finely. The sailors hornpipe, danced by DeWitt Justy and Florence Fouts, was also greatly enjoyed. Ralph Swain and Chester Fedlar sang "Daisy" very well and amused the audience mightily.

Then came the minuet, danced in costume and with much grace by eight of the little folks—Edith and Gladys Sherwood, Gracie Graham, Cecilia Razey, Leona Hendey, DeWitt Justy, Colbert Colwell and Ralph Swain. The grand march followed, after which there was a little dancing. The little folks showed careful training and the audience was well pleased with their performance.

THE PROMENADE CONCERT.

Meeting of the Lady Managers—Votes of Thanks.

The lady managers of the promenade concert held a meeting last Wednesday to receive the reports of the committees that had the affair in charge. Great satisfaction was expressed with the result of the concert.

A resolution of thanks to the ladies and children who so willingly and ably assisted in the sale of tickets for the concert was unanimously adopted, and the children who sold flowers at the entertainment were included in the resolutions, as were all those who took part in the program.

Votes of thanks were also given to those who contributed refreshments—some of the contributors being from the colonies—to the musicians and to the press for its valuable assistance. Mrs. Gardner and Miss Helm, who assisted at the ice cream booth, were also voted thanks.

The entire arrangements were in charge of the lady managers, who did their work most efficiently. They officiated as floor managers, ticket takers, in the supper room and in the ice cream booth. It was found after the payment of the various expenses that there remained $230 for the Midwinter Fair fund, which amount it was directed to pay over to the secretary of the Midwinter Fair Association of this county.

AGAINST REPEAL.

The County Ordinance on Sunday Closing Upheld.

The following preamble and resolutions were passed last night by the local lodge of I. O. G. T. protesting against a repeal of the county ordinance closing saloons nights and Sundays:

Whereas, It having been reported that the saloon keepers of the county are endeavoring to repeal the ordinance closing saloons on the sabbath and that they only require one more vote than they have already been promised to gain a repeal; now be it

Resolved, That the chief templar appoint a committee to wait on the supervisors and point out the benefits that have resulted to the community from the Sunday closing ordinance, and ask them not to revoke the same.

It is further resolved that this resolution be given to the press and also that all Good Templar lodges in the county be requested to take action in opposing the proposed repeal of the ordinance.

DAD LYNN'S FOSSIL.

A WONDER FROM THE WILDS OF NEVADA.

A Petrified Remnant of the Carboniferous Fern Age.

"Dad" Lynn of this city was formerly a more or less honest miner in the state of Nevada and according to his story he found a number of things lying around loose in the sagebrush state which he did not carry off.

Just at present he is doing the rough carpenter work on a story concerning a petrified tree which he discovered while prospecting for precious metal over there and which he claims is still hid away in one of the pistol pockets of that free silver commonwealth.

He had enough of the frame work of this story up yesterday to enable one to form some conception of its magnificent dimensions when he gets it thoroughly braced and weather-boarded and puts on some attractive cornice work, together with the cupola and flagpole.

He says that he and his "pard" ran across a territory covered with petrified stumps and fragments of trees apparently of natural wood, but really of good solid stone. The country rock surrounding the site is of a bastard character, composed of a sort of conglomerate mixture of the Ogallala-Sioux and Colorado-undura periods, geologically speaking.

This tree is twenty feet in diameter at the stump, and is one solid piece from bottom to top; but whether it is 600 or 6000 feet in length, "Dad" is somewhat in doubt, and has written to his old "pard" for an exact statement on this point, and when he receives this "Dad" proposes to lay the baking powder affidavit makers in the dense shade.

He is seriously contemplating transporting this wonder to the Midwinter Fair on a log sled, and will do so if he meets with proper encouragement.

THE SUNDAY LAW.

A Plausible Argument Made Against It.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN:—In your paper of January 3d I noticed the remarks of "Home Seeker" and was reminded of the proverb, "He that is first in his own cause seemeth just; but his neighbor cometh and searcheth him." Now, with your permission, I would like to give expression to a few thoughts that came to my mind while reading his article in favor of Sunday laws. First, I will say that for those who believe Sunday is a sacred day and keep it as such, I have no word of censure, for any person doing this cannot be a very bad citizen, but when any one affirms that a Sunday law is a panacea for all the trouble caused by the lawless class, and also a condition whereby towns may flourish and grow and everything pertaining to them enter on an era of glorious prosperity, I confess that I am too obtuse to see the point of the argument. I have been in California over forty years and have seen many towns and cities spring as by magic into existence with all the elements of prosperity, and this without a Sunday law; and as to the character of its citizens, I believe they will compare favorably with those of any state in the union.

Again he says that the young men, girls, laborers and barbers looked forward with joyous anticipation to the day of rest. Now, if we are to infer that this general overflow of joy was on account of a Sunday law being in force, what was to hinder these people from enjoying the day without any Sunday law? Or did they belong to a class that could not bear to enjoy anything except others were compelled to enjoy it with them?

His reference to the constitution, as recognizing a day of rest given on liberty or authority to compel any one to keep it, but simply excepts Sunday from the ten days allowed the President to return bills to congress after they are presented to him, but article one of the amendments reads thus: "Congress shall make no laws respecting an establishment of religion as prohibiting the free exercise thereof." I unhesitatingly affirm that Sunday keeping is a religious institution, and all that keep it conscientiously will admit that it is a part of their religious life, and I still further claim that no man or any body of men have any right to deprive them of the privilege of living out their faith in this matter, not even if there were but one in the whole United States he should be protected.

But now comes the most important question of all—what right have those who keep Sunday because they happen to be in the majority, to insist that all, both saint and sinner, shall conform to their ideas of religion? Would it not be as reasonable for those who believe in baptism and the Eucharist, to insist that all shall conform to their idea in these ordinances also, as to enforce Sunday keeping upon the whole community?

"Home Seeker" says that he never heard of any conflict with the Seventh Day Adventist, nor any other religious denominations; then I will say for his information that at the present time there are three men serving out a term of imprisonment at Centerville in Maryland for working about their own house on Sunday, where they disturbed no one. Their fines, with costs, were $100 each, and as they would not pay the fines, they were sent to prison. The same thing has happened in Arkansas and Tennessee, and all this in this boasted land of religious liberty. Now I ask, do not these things most plainly violate the letter and spirit of the constitution?

AMUSEMENTS.

"The Streets of New York" at the Barton Tonight.

The California Stock Company arrived in Fresno last night. The scenery and mechanical effects are all ready, and the play will go with a vim. The people of Fresno should give this enterprise their hearty support. It is the first effort to establish a first class stock company at reasonable prices. The company at present is an excellent one, but Mr. White promises to make it still stronger from time to time as business justifies.

"The Streets of New York" is an old play, and nearly every one of the older people have seen it, but it is a play that will stand seeing the second time, and in the hands of the present company will be well worth seeing at the prices charged. Seats are selling rapidly.

Insolvency of Sid Lewallen.

H. D. Colson vs. Arthur S. Clark et al.; foreclosure.

More Highbinders Arrive.

It is reported that another lot of highbinders arrived in the city last evening from San Francisco to do a little blackmailing at the expense of the Chinese merchants. If the report be true the police should take prompt measures to rid the city of the yellow rascals. They have gone without check long enough, and the best way to prevent further acts of violence is to turn them back as soon as they arrive.

A Dangerous Performance.

The billposter was plastering the billboards with the announcement of Fresno Mastodon Midwinter Minstrels next Friday, in such large red letters that they frightened a number of country teams. The public is notified that all teams should be securely chained at the time of the performance, which will be too lurid for the soberest family nag, and will, unless great care is taken, result in turmoil.

In Good Condition.

The annual meeting of the Swedish Mission church was held last night. They can look back on the past year as a year of real success in spiritual as well as economical results. Notwithstanding the hard times they are without debts and still have money in the treasury. Some new members were added to the church and all its members were pleased at the prospects of the future.

TREES MADE A FINE GROWTH ON ALKALI LAND AFTER USING GYPSUM

VISALIA, November 21, 1893.—Coalinga Gypsum and Fertilizing Company—Gentlemen: In November, 1892, I bought four tons of your Gypsum and applied it to 4½ acres of land on my place near Visalia. I then planted pear trees on the land, and they have made an excellent growth. The Evansville Fruit Company planted pear trees on the same kind of land just across the road from my place, and their trees did not make much of a growth. I cheerfully recommend your Gypsum to any one who contemplates planting trees in alkali land. GEO. A. PARKER.

ENDORSED BY THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS OF TULARE COUNTY.

VISALIA, November 7, 1893.—Coalinga Gypsum and Fertilizing Company—Gentlemen: I used your Gypsum on the court house yard here with excellent results as a fertilizer and neutralizer of alkali, greatly improving that which had already been set to grass and producing a fine growth on some alkali spots heretofore bare. H. J. FLEMING, Janitor.

The members of the Board of Supervisors of Tulare county hereby certify that the above is true.

FROM A PROMINENT FRUIT GROWER OF KINGS COUNTY.

HANFORD, November 28, 1893.—Coalinga Gypsum and Fertilizing Company—Gentlemen: In reply to your questions regarding the neutralizing qualities of your Gypsum sent to me, I can say that I have experimented with it on what is considered the very strongest kind of alkali land, and in fact lands that have not a particle of vegetation growing thereon. My process was to take a given quantity of the land and mix the Gypsum; now my seeds, viz: alfalfa, wheat, corn, barley, peach and a few varieties of flower seed, and in all cases the seeds germinated well. On the other hand, the same soil, even mixed with different kinds of manure, would not germinate seeds without Gypsum, consequently I have no hesitancy in recommending your Gypsum to the farmers and horticulturists of Kings, Tulare and other counties in the state. Yours respectfully, JAS. A. HILL.

NOW IS THE TIME TO USE GYPSUM—BEFORE THE RAINS.

FOR RENT

The lower floor (50 by 90 feet) of the building occupied for the last five years by the United States government as a postoffice, on the south corner of Fresno and J streets, in the city of Fresno, is now for rent to paying tenants for gold coin. The building is first-class in all respects, having been constructed expressly for the use of the U. S. Postoffice Department. It contains a large fire and burglar-proof vault, and can be divided by a partition, if necessary, into two large apartments, suitable for any class of commercial business. The location is one of the very best in the city, on the corner of two of its most prominent streets.

Possession given as soon as said government vacates the premises. For terms apply by mail or in person to

A SONG OF A HEART.

Dear heart, I love you! All the day I wonder
If skies are rich with blue
Or bending back with tempest and with thunder,
Dear heart, dear heart, o'er you!

Dear heart, I love you! When pale stars are gleaming—
Sad stars to me and few—
I wonder if God's lovelier lights are streaming,
Dear heart, dear heart, o'er you!

Dear heart, if life had only one bright blossom,
One rose to meet the dew,
I'd kiss it, climbing to your restful bosom,
And wear its thorns for you!

A LITTLE HEROINE.

The spring sun was shining brightly on the peaks and slopes of the Andalusian Sierras and on the white hamlet that snugly nestled in the fertile valley below. It was a pretty sight—this little village with its small whitewashed houses shining in the morning sun, surrounded on every side by the blue mountains and thick, green forest. The country is very picturesque and wild in this mountainous part of Andalusia, and it is very thinly populated, but the little village of Saldana nestled there contentedly, as if wishing to be shielded from the hot winds of Africa in August or the cold ones coming from the Pyrenees in January.

Saldana people were in general very cheerful, polite and sociable to any stranger who by chance strayed among their wilds, but now the village wears a mournful aspect. The streets are deserted, the houses, clean and neat as "little silver cups," have their ever hospitable doors closed. Once in awhile a woman is seen on the street going quickly on some errand, and returning immediately with all possible speed to her home.

The reason for this depression was that the Carlist war was waging hotly in Spain, and [illegible] Carlist detachment [illegible] of the fierce northern Basques, followers of Don Carlos, was approaching the little town.

All the able men of Saldana had joined a small company of the royal army and were concealed about in the mountains, from whence they expected to surprise the Carlists, to whom this part of the country was unknown.

About noon of the day after the news was received, Petrona, wife of Juan Alvarez, the carpenter of the village, called Gloria, her eldest daughter, a pretty 15-year-old girl with dark curly hair and big, black eyes, and putting in her hands a large basket, said:

"Go, child, to La Quebrada and carry something to eat to your poor father and brother and take care that no reprobate Carlist sees you."

Gloria took the basket and briskly went on her way without misgivings, for no Carlist had as yet been seen near Saldana. She had walked about a mile from her home by a path cut into the rock when the song that came so merrily from her lips stopped suddenly, for on reaching a big rock which marked the half way between Saldana and La Quebrada an unseen person cried to her:

"Halt!"

Mechanically Gloria paused on her way and looked around her. As if by magic she saw herself surrounded by many soldiers on horseback, and this was not the worst—she recognized by the uniforms and colors that they were followers of Don Carlos the Pretender. One of the men, who seemed to be their leader, approached her and asked:

"Where are you going?"

The poor child was so frightened that she burst into tears.

The officer dismounted. "Let me see what you have in that basket," he said. "Ah, food! That is good. We have not had anything to good for a long time—eggs, bread, meat, fruit. Now, my dear, you were taking these provisions to some royalists concealed about these mountains, were you not? Now, tell me where they are."

Poor Gloria knew that if she told him the place of their concealment all the soldiers would be slain, including her father and brother, for the number of Carlists was so much larger than the royalists. In her fright she thought their number reached many thousands. On the other hand, if she refused to tell where the royalist soldiers were, she was sure these monsters would kill her.

The commanding officer took the basket from her arm and gave it to one of the soldiers, then said in his strong, harsh northern accent:

"Look here, girl, you were taking food to some soldiers around here. I know that. If you lead us to where they are, I will give you these two shining gold ounces. If you refuse, I will shoot you with this musket. Do you understand? Now go ahead!"

A desperate resolve was forming itself in Gloria's brain, the undaunted courage of her ancestors began to rise in her soul. She turned to the captain and said:

"Yes, I know where they are, but they are very far away. If you wish, I will take you to them."

"That is right."

The captain ordered a soldier to give her one of the extra horses captured in the morning, and, tying a rope, which he kept in his hand, to the neck of the animal, he told her to lead on.

Everybody followed her. Across clear streams and roaring torrents she took them. They walked by dangerous paths beside deep precipices. Here and there they crossed a picturesque valley. After nearly four hours of incessant marching, and when the sun was in his descent toward the horizon, Gloria stopped, and turning to the captain said:

"I am too tired and can go no further."

The Basque eyed her suspiciously and asked:

"Are we near their camp?"

"I do not know. I have lost my way."

"You lie, girl!" shouted the man furiously, shaking her roughly by the arm. "You have purposely misled us, and taken us miles from them. Now, for the last time, I'll give you one more chance. Will you lead us to where the royalist soldiers are?"

Gloria raised her beautiful eyes to the man's fine, eyes that at this moment were more angelic than human, and without faltering said in a low voice:

"No, senor."

"You little devil!" roared the man, now possessed of an uncontrollable fury. "I'll teach you to fool me like this. Pull her down from the horse, bring some strong rope and bind her hands and feet!" he shouted to his men.

There are no crueler or bloodier wars than those waged between brothers, and in this Carlist war both parties committed some acts that make those who hear of them wonder if the wretches who were guilty of those atrocities were human beings or wild beasts.

Pale as death and trembling lay poor Gloria at the feet of this human tiger. Her lips moved. Perhaps she was repeating the prayers taught her by her mother. Still not a tear dimmed the soft luster of her eyes.

"Do you see that precipice? It is very deep. If you do not tell me, I will throw you over there, tied hand and foot as you are now. You will die a horrible death. Only one thing will save you. Now tell me where the enemy is camped."

"I cannot, senor."

There was a wild cry that the Carlist officer would hear until the day of his death, and then, after a few minutes of complete silence, the captain gave the order to march forward to find a camp for the night. Not for the world would he have passed the night there.

Five hundred feet below the setting sun lighted a dark, motionless mass by the side of a little mountain stream flowing and murmuring over the smooth pebbles, as if singing a hymn in honor of the heroic Gloria.

In the little village church of Saldana there is a small marble stone with the name of Gloria Alvarez, on which is recorded the deed by which she saved the royalist detachment. And when the stranger exclaims, in admiration of her courage, "She was a wonderful child!" the old sexton, who delights to tell her story to the visitors, interrupts with conviction, "She was no child, senor; she was one of God's own angels!"—Amalia Solano in Short Stories.

The Pearly Gates Ajar.

An ancient legend says that the angel on guard at the door of heaven was once asked by an inquisitive passer if more married or more single women passed through.

"More married ones," he promptly answered.

"Indeed!" said the questioner, who was a man, and who immediately began to plume himself. "Their husbands' virtues of course admitted them. That was right. The stronger should aid the weaker."

"No," replied the angel, "that is not the reason."

"Then what is it?"

"Well, if you must know," said the angel confidentially, "we pass them first on their own merits. Lots of 'em get through that way. Then, when we can't find any other recommendation for a married woman, it is written against her name, 'There are they which have come up out of great tribulation,' and the gates fly open."

THE BOND QUESTION.

A Correspondent Expresses Himself Against an Issue.

EDITOR REPUBLICAN:—President Cleveland is said to be uneasy about the financial situation, as the good times promised have not come by repeal of the silver purchase act. If Cleveland is too obtuse to know that an act to curtail money without any promise or provisions for other means of expanding it to meet business wants must necessarily result in business depression, it is high time the public act for themselves in the matter, as it is thus apparent that no other means are at hand to do anything to help the matter.

It is said there is a disposition now to lay aside all other questions in congress and pass some relief measure. The course most popular with "the powers" is that of issuing more bonds. But this will evidently have bitter opposition, as the masses seem to think it purely a necessity brought about by a gigantic conspiracy to place the public in a position to accept them simply because monopoly would accept no other, and that it laid the function of defeating any measure the people might suggest.

It is true that the bond issue would temporarily ease the money market, as would any other measure that would restore confidence in the sufficiency of currency to do business with, but the seriousness of the matter to the public lies back of the bonds in this: That if the bond business has already given such power to the money lenders as to allow them to throw the country into a great panic, causing the most widespread ruin and suffering, will it be good policy to increase this power by giving them more power to renew their onslaught later, and further extend their control of all things? Judging by bank reports, there is now probably enough gold in New York and Chicago to buy $200,000,000 bonds. As these two cities were so active in securing the present condition, it is but fair to assume they will refuse to loan any of this money until they get bonds, by which they will draw interest on the bonds and then loan the issue on the bonds beside. No one could much blame them to ask this, but will a public that bears all the burden of tax to create this wealth be warranted in accepting such a demand? Already serious murmurs are heard saying that such a bold demand following up the late actions had rightly appealed to the manhood of the people to defend themselves against an enemy of the most dangerous character.

The Knights of Labor have issued an address to protest against bonds. This example will likely be followed by other societies. The fact that people cannot afford to wait long on this question ought to bring all communities into correspondence with congress at once, that a decision may be reached. If nothing can be done to help matters until another election, it is time all should know it. If anything can be done it is time it was known so people could reasonably calculate as to the future.

My own views as to the best method are too well known to repeat here. I am willing, like thousands of others, to meet the majority on any plan that is honorable. No doubt if we once determine to act, and begin it in earnest, we will soon concentrate on a policy that will make corrections in the interest of the public which will be much wiser than the bond policy, which every man knows today is urged wholly in the interest of the holders of them. But if the bonds must come, then we suggest that on them, and the currency issued on them, instead of "In God we trust" that in bold letters it should read, "The public be damned." I. N. HARRIS.

Humanity's Vermiform Appendix.

From the Sacramento Bee.

Editor Stead appears to have nothing whatever to take back in his remarks recently made at Chicago, when he said that "the most disreputable women of Chicago are those endowed by society and Providence, who think nothing of the welfare of their brothers and sisters."

The society people of Chicago are making fools of themselves in bowling at Stead. One such man as he is worth more to humanity than legions of social lions. The world does not stop to consider how absolutely useless a thing a society person is, until members of them come together and cackle like a flock of geese at some one who is really of value to the world. The people then lift their hats in admiration at a man so distinguished as to be worthy of the scornful lip of that vermiform appendix to humanity known as "our best society."

Dr. M. S. Jaffe—Dear Sir: I want to say a few words about Jaffe's Electric Pain Expeller. I suffered for six years from varicose veins; a few applications gave me a perfect relief. I cured my 4-months'-old baby of cramps by giving it three drops in warm water and sugar. I am subject to nervous spells, and by taking one dose I obtain immediate relief. I use it for my little ones for colds, cholera morbus and all indispositions, and cheerfully recommend it to mothers as an invaluable remedy.
